This is an interactive overview of relevant theories and techniques of General Practice Psychotherapy. It is also a brief overview of Interpersonal Therapy. Essential “Do’s” and “Don’ts” of therapy: including Record Keeping, Confidentiality, Consent to Treatment, and Boundary Issues. We will have an interactive discussion of real and fictional patient-therapist encounters. There will be the viewing of some Hollywood film clips featuring psychotherapy.  This program is revised – although based on the earlier course – it has been changed and adapted. 	9:00 to 10:30 AM Overview of Standards and Guidelines of General Practice Psychotherapy Physicians often do Psychotherapy without as much training as they would want since there are so many demands on their time. This session covers a few centrally important and yet rarely discussed essential elements of successful ethical psychotherapy (such as confidentiality – and its limits – obtaining truly informed consent; keeping good boundaries, etc. The participants will have increased knowledge of the Standards and the Guidelines for Psychotherapy and issues of confidentiality, Record Keeping, Informed Consent, Boundaries, Diagnosis, and Suicide Assessment, etc.	9:00 to 10:30 AM Supportive Psychotherapy: Ten Things to Do, and Ten Things to Avoid Most physicians (even Psychiatrists) don't do "specialized" Psychotherapy (CBT or Psychodynamic, etc.) but rather they do supportive psychotherapy. Thus this program in very practical, and is also an interactive session. The session will be an outline of several of the key positive elements of therapy (such as empathy and support) and several things to avoid (such as excessive reassurance and excessive advice giving). We will cover the important ingredients of a "Therapeutic Contract" in the area of General Practice (Medical) Psychotherapy. The participant will have	9:00 to 10:30 AM Boundary Issues in Psychotherapy This program describes the theoretical foundations and shows (using DVD clips) the practical application of boundaries in the clinical process. The foundation of good quality medicine is not only scientific and technical, it is also ethical. Boundaries are essential to an appropriate therapeutic relationship. As professional helpers we need to know boundaries well so we can get as close to a patient without intruding upon, or "using" a patient in any way. The difference between Boundary Crossings and	9:00 to 10:30 AM Interpersonal Psychotherapy Interpersonal Psychotherapy (IPT), is a short-term, manualized (meaning very structured) psychotherapy. IPT was first designed for the treatment of individuals with depressive disorders. IPT is an effective type of therapy, which is very similar to the more common “supportive psychotherapy”, that most physicians actually provide. The main difference is that IPT is somewhat more clearly “packaged”. Currently, IPT is an officially recommended treatment for depressive disorders. Substantial empirical evidence supporting IPT’s efficacy has progressively grown	9:00 to 10:30 AM Practical Consideration on Transference and Countertransference in Psychotherapy This session will highlight my own practical understanding of transference (T) and countertransference (CT). I gained this understanding through extensive training in psychotherapy and through personal and professional experience – both as a patient; as a therapist; and as a psychotherapy supervisor and mentor. Transference (T) and countertransference (CT) are common phenomena seen everyday in Family Practice and Psychotherapy. Both T and CT are related to projections that naturally occur for every patient and all therapists. T has to do with certain feelings

CT has to do with certain feelings (or thoughts, or attitudes, etc) a therapist can have towards a patient. Both T and CT are neither "good", nor are they "bad". They are instead like all feelings: they just are yet what we do with these feeling could be bad. So it is best to recognize and understand these CT feelings better. To make this session more accessible, and very relevant, the speaker will use DVD of psychotherapy and we will analyze it for both T and CT. The speaker will discuss several Family Practice clinical situations so that the session is more experiential and practical (as well as theoretical).

In the morning and evening you are free to enjoy the many wonderful features of the Deerhurst Resort.

“Good Will Hunting”

A psychological drama about a 20-year-old lad who works as a janitor at MIT and spends most of his time with his wild friends at the neighborhood bar, and yet is also blessed with a certain genius. He has never attended college, yet he can solve difficult mathematical problems with ease. Nevertheless he has some very seriously dysfunctional personality traits. Due to his problems with the law he can only avoid jail by agreeing to see a psychiatrist. He mocks or psychologically torments these therapists until he meets his match in a psychotherapist and wounded healer played by Robin Williams. Both doctor and patient are haunted by their pasts and as mutual respect slowly develops, the healing process begins.

“Ordinary People”

This is one movie that truly portrays the real agony of depression and how it affects an entire family. This movie is a masterpiece of realism. It is also a compelling depiction of a good healing therapeutic relationship between the therapist and the patient. There is no sugar coating here and no sweet happy ending. The viewer realizes that things will never be the same but that the lives of the characters will go on, yet in different directions.

“Therapist–Client Boundary Challenges” DVD American Psychological Association

This DVD presents selected as scenes of psychotherapy facing therapist–client boundary issues. The vignettes on this DVD are designed to stimulate discussion of preferred responses to ethically ambiguous situations. This DVD features clients portrayed by actors skilled in improvisation, on the basis of actual case material. The therapists were not briefed in advance on the nature of the scenarios being enacted, so their responses are spontaneous and unrehearsed.

- Specific boundaries discussed:
- The Hug
 - The Gift x 3
 - The Touch
 - A Show and Drinks

“In Treatment”

In denial. In conflict. In love. In Treatment is set within the psychotherapy sessions of several patients. The drama features Paul (Gabriel Byrne), a therapist who usually exhibits insight and caring when treating his patients. Nevertheless part also suffers insecurities and a lack of clinical judgment. This comes to light while counseled by his own therapist, “Gina”. Adding to Paul list of growing concerns, his wife, “Kate” is overcome with feelings of neglect and resents competing for his attention. Patients undergoing treatment with Paul are usually fortunate to have him as a therapist. And yet Paul has major problems with boundaries and occasionally crosses and then even violates boundaries which lead to significant patient harm. (Note: as a physician Paul would likely have been strip of his medical license for boundary violations!)

“Mr. Jones”

Richard Gere appears in this dramatic story about a man on the verge of self-destruction. Gere gives a strong performance as Mr. Jones, a patient suffering bipolar disorder who, during his emotional highs, is funny, creative and charming. And then, of course, he crashes. Mr. Jones is a man some woman can’t resist, including his concerned – yet disturbed – psychotherapist. Passionate feelings lead to intensely inappropriate (yet realistic) boundary crossings. The boundary crossings then intensify and become boundary violations. This movie: Mr. Jones, is an engrossing example of the distorting and destructive power of strong countertransference!

This program meets the accreditation criteria of The College of Family Physicians of Canada and has been accredited for 15 Mainpro-C credits.
